WILLING TO LEAVE IT UP TO WILSON

EUROPEAN POWERS HAVE FULL CONFIDENCE IN HIS PURPOSE AND ABILITY

ALL APPROVE MEDIATION

President Now More Hopeful That Mediation Efforts Will be Successful

By Associated Press

Washington, April 30—It was learned today that the South American envoys had proposed to General Carranza that he join the armistice with the United States and Huerta

Washington April 30 It was asserted on unquestioned authority today that the South American envoys who are seeking peace between the United States and Huerta have appealed to European powers to use their friendly offices to facilitate negotiations between the two parties

The appeal it was stated did not include a request that the powers use their influence with President Wilson to name conditions to insure the success of the negotiations The appeal has already borne fruit as several European ambassadors have informed Secretary Bryan of the friendly attitude of their governments toward the negotiations Emphatic denial was made of the previous report that the European powers had been asked to use their influence with President Wilson for the naming of conditions that would make the negotiations possible It was declared that none of the governments have any desire in any way to interfere with President Wilson and his policies in regard to the Mexican situation as they have the utmost confidence in his intentions and his ability to carry them out

Up to noon today no announcement as to the nature of the negotiations in progress had been made but it was expected that some definite announcement as to the next step would be forthcoming in the immediate future

President Wilson indicated to callers at the White House today that he was very hopeful for the success of the negotiations

The acceptance by Carranza of the principle of mediation by the South American envoys after he had conferred with General Villa at Chihuahua is regarded in administration circles as significant

NORRIS JURY COMPLETED WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Fort Worth Texas April 30—Taking of testimony started in the trial of Rev J Frank Norris on a charge of setting fire and burning the First Baptist parsonage in Fort Worth The jury was completed late yesterday and comprises the following

L E Swackhammer farmer lives twelve miles east of city

John McCormicl collector 1305 Henderson street

E N Hukill laborer Riverside

Hardy Boone packing house employe Riverside

A D McGinnis farmer Riverside

T B Tarwater farmer Smithfield

C C Leatherwood butcher Glenwood

I D Roylston traction company employe Handley

Dave Hackney farmer Hurst

C J Johnson farmer south of city

J J Robinson teamster stove foundry road

Within a few minutes after court convened Wednesday afternoon the panel of thirty two talesmen was completed and by 3 o clock the jury was obtained to try the case of the State vs J Frank Norris on the charge of setting fire and burning the Baptist parsonage

Immediately after the jury was impaneled counsel for the state and the defendant agreed to begin hearing the evidence Thursday morning The jury having been obtained sooner than anticipated and there being no witnesses present the judge granted the agreed motion, and stated that the court would not delay the trial in any instance because a witness was not present when called for and requested attorneys on both sides to so notify their witnesses of the order so as to prevent an attachment from being issued for them

County Attorney Baskin announced that he had received a telegram from Mr and Mrs K K Taylor in Louisiana stating that they would be present and ready to testify in the case on Friday morning

The county attorney based his motion for a continuance which was overruled by Judge Swayne on the absence of these two important witnesses from the state

Having completed all the preliminaries such as reading the charge to the jury and receiving the plea of not guilty of the defendant through his attorneys Judge Swayne lectured the jurors not to discuss the case among themselves and not to mention the name of the defendant until after all the testimony had been heard the charge delivered and the panel retired to the jury room to consider the verdict

ADOPTION OF BUDGET BEFORE COUNCIL TONIGHT

Heads of Various Departments Expected to Present Estimates at Meeting

Adoption of the budget the first in the city s history will come up at the meeting of the city council tonight Heads of the various departments have been at work this week preparing estimates of the amounts they will require for the ensuing year and will submit them for adoption to night

The city s expenses will be heavy this year and as the tax rate was adopted before the charter went into effect there will be less to spend than usual The city gets no revenue from poll taxes this year and it will require some close figuring to get by before advalorem taxes start coming in again

The only considerable item of expense outside of what will be cared for by bond issues will be the new fire engine and this will probably be cared for by notes The increase in the police force is one considerable item

It is possible that an election for park bonds will be ordered tonight to provide for the purchase of the Seven Sisters block

Lawyers Fail To Show Up—Cases Were Dismissed

Litigants in the county court who were not present in person or by counsel when their cases were called yesterday and today are losers their cases were promptly dismissed by Judge Keller in accordance with his announced decision The judge had given notice that when a case was set for a certain date and counsel was not on hand at that time dismissal would follow This morning there were half a dozen cases set for trial and nary a lawyer on hand to attend to them The judge ordered each dismissed saying that unless the attorneys were sufficiently interested to be on hand the court could not be expected to take up time with them

NINE LIVES LOST IN COLORADO WAR

LATER REPORTS MAY INCREASE THE FATALITIES IN FIGHT YESTERDAY

SITUATION MORE CRITICAL

Only Strong Hand of Federal Government Can Stop Industrial Warfare There

By Associated Press

Denver Colo April 30—Nine identified dead and probably many more not yet reported was the toll of the fighting yesterday and last night in the strike zone One of these that of Major P L Lester a prominent physician of Walsenburg, while trying to save the life of a wounded mine guard has added to the tenseness of the feeling here today Following the report of the killing of Major Lester thirty members of the militia company who had served under him forgot their grievance against the state over non payment for their services and late last night went to Walsenburg to offer their services

The battle at Forbes in which seven mine guards and two strikers lost their lives caused state officials to announce that drastic action would be taken For this action Governor Ammons looks to United States troops to give protection Troops from Fort D A Russell Wyoming arrived last night and took charge of affairs there after desperate fighting between guards and strikers

Fort Leveanworth troops have been sent to the Trinidad district and it was expected that a detachment would be sent to Walsenburg where yesterday a battle raged between 100 state soldiers divided into two companies of fifty each and forty strikers entrenched with rifles behind breastworks of the lava formation of the hills which form a semi-circle about three miles long about the town The militia had started to the Walsen mine to aid in the defense of that property when attacked

RICHEST BACHELOR BECOMES A BENEDICT

William Vincent Astor Married Today to Helen Dinsmore Huntington at Staatsburg

By Associated Press

Staatsburg April 30—William Vincent Astor son of the late John Jacob Astor and reputed richest bachelor in America was married this morning, to Helen Dinsmore Huntington whom he had known since childhood at Hopeland House the home of the bride s parents Mr and Mrs Robert T Huntington

Less than fifty persons witnessed the ceremony Three of these were the superintendents of the Astor Huntington and Dinsmore estates respectively

The Rev Charles H Duncan rector of St Marguerites Church read the Episcopal service Following the ceremony the wedding party assembled in the long room where a wedding breakfast was served Mrs Ava Willing Astor mother of the bridegroom attended The widow of Col Astor was not present although she had been invited She is now in the South

All out of town guests came here on a special train furnished by the bridegroom for the occasion Miss Alice Huntington sister of the bride was maid of honor Hermann Oelrichs was best man These were the only attendants Wallace Goodrich of Boston formerly organist at old Trinity Church Boston played the same wedding march today that held twenty two years ago at the marriage of the brides parents at St Margarets Church here

The bride was given away by her father Mrs John Astor who divorced the bridegrooms father Col John Jacob Astor came from Europe to attend the ceremony Immediately following the ceremony and small reception Mr and Mrs Astor leave for their honeymoon which will include a motoring trip in England and France and later cruise on the palatial Astor yacht Noma The couple will make their home at Ferncliffe which is about six miles from the Huntington mansion here

Gen Chao Tieh defeated the main body of the force near Kingan Shen Shi Four hundred of the bandits were killed and 600 drowned

ENVOYS EXTEND SCOPE OF EFFORTS

CARRANZA NOW INCLUDED IN ELEMENTS OF SITUATION CONSIDERED

HOPE FOR PEACE IS GROWING

Neither U S Nor Huerta Has Yet Indicated Points Upon Which They Will Insist

By Associated Press

Washington April 30 Swift developments in the Mexican crisis are expected now that Carranza has placed himself within the scope of the field of endeavor of the South American peace envoys and it was believed that an armistice between Huerta and the northern rebels would be speedily agreed upon

Confirmation of Carranza s acceptance of the principles of the good offices of Argentina Brazil and Chile was confirmed this morning His reply forwarded from Chihuahua thanked the envoys for their attempt to solve in a peaceful manner the trouble between Mexico and the United States but did not mention the civil strife in Mexico

The note from Carranza practically brings within the range of the aims of the three envoys all elements in the Mexican trouble and gives added hope that the situation may be composed in a peaceful manner in such a way that lasting peace and order may be restored throughout Mexico

Assurances have been given both by the United States and Huerta of the acceptance of an armistice The United States has made it known however that any untoward act by Mexico or attacks upon American citizens in Mexico will be regarded as a violation of the truce

Neither Huerta nor the United States has indicated what points they will insist upon in the negotiations They simply have accepted the good offices of the South American envoys in their efforts to bring peace out of a menacing situation

Reports early today from Mexico City from the Mexican war minister that he had received reports that American warships had shelled Manzanillo and that American marines had been landed at Salina Cruz were discredited by navy and state department officials here Rear Admiral Howard is in close touch with the vessels on the west coast and no such incidents had been reported this morning

The rebel attack upon Tampico continued early today

How Did Louis Know It? That Bothersome Question

There were five of them and a merry little game of draw was proceeding blithely on the fifth floor of the Westland Hotel No chips were used and when one of the participants desired to decorate the mahogany he shoved the long green itself out to the center of the table As time quickened by the pile of green increased

Came a tapping gentle tapping at the door Entered one Louis Jernigan the same being night police chief The players looked at Louis and Louis looked at the money the players looked at the money and Louis looked at the players Thick silence prevailed the players seemed too full for words Silently the money the cards and the players were gathered up and proceeded to the police station where each plead guilty and paid his fine

But how Louis knew it Louis only knows and he won t tell

AT THE MOVIES

The Victoria

Today the Victoria is showing one of the famous Keystone comedies The Race one that all will enjoy A two reel Majestic drama of the Canadian woods, The Atonement is also showing today This drama depicting the backwoods people contrasts the simple hunter of the forests with a certain class of city hunters to the decided disadvantage of the latter The action is quick the plot interesting and the audience views every scene with intense interest

The Majestic

The Majestic is showing an unusual program today consisting of four single reel pictures with every picture a feature To begin with there is A Change of Baggage Checks John Bunny and Flora Finch are two actors playing on the same vaudeville circuit at different theatres They get a call to the same town and their trunks get mixed When they arrive at the different theatres the mix up in trunks is discovered It is too late to make any other arrangements so each one decides to wear what is in the trunks Bunny and Flora lack a whole foot being the same size but they both handle themselves some make quite a hit At the Majestic the Wild Cat series is showing today The Perilous Leap by Lily Salig King Baby's Birthday and Father's Letter

The Empress

A Circle feature in three parts The Trap is the chief feature of today at the Empress The story is of life in the northwoods and the central figure in the picture is a young trapper who has to fight to secure himself from the world A girl enters into the story as a child in distress and current of love runs through the picture The plot is in the ordinary and the manner in which the story is worked out is still unique A Vitagraph drama featuring Mary Charleson in Silent Evidence a fantasia of the west and an Edison comedy The Sultan and the Roller Skates complete the bill

The Gem

Van Dyke Brooke Norma Talmadge and Jack Deline are featured in a two part Vitagraph drama The Blue Rose A Lubin A Romance of the Northwest and two Selig comedies Venus and Adonis and A Mad Marathon are the attractions today at the Gem

Lydia Margaret

The Lydia Margaret has a wonderful feature bill for today When Cupid Wills and Fates The background of the story is the great north woods when the snow is on the ground The central characters of the story are a man who is very sick whose chance of life in getting to a specialist in Seattle and a woman as his wife whose love for him is so great that she will stop at nothing that will aid in his welfare The events in the play are naturally worked up and fortune is followed by evil mishaps and when in the end sorrow is the portion of both followed by death the audience is deeply sympathetic The Senator's Bill a story of a senator who experiences a change of heart and withdraws a bill proposing to divert with capital punishment through influence of a friend Two vaudeville bills open at the Lydia Margaret today

Ballade of Old Lovers.

Where have they gone, each devotee,
Lovers we scorned, and bade not stay
All of the lads who begged that we Love and honor them and obey?
Finest of earth, or common clay,
Men we pursued, or men we fled,
Bold to demand or mild to pray—
Here's to the men we did not wed!
Jack has a wife and children three;
Pride of his cheerful heart, they say
(He and his heart he swore we'd see Shut in the tomb without delay)!
Jimmy to Asia's made his way,
Carroll's a crank and Duncan's dead,
Algernon's golden locks are gray—
Here's to the men we did not wed!
Arthur in Congress makes his plea,
Horace's wits have gone astray,
Guy's as rich as a man can be,
Tom's a drunkard and drives a dray;
Billy is bald and plump and gay,
(Once he was sad and slim instead)
Bob is a triple divorce—
Here's to the men we did not wed!
Prince of our dreams in girlhood's May
Ere the white rose of youth was shed
Matters not whom we chose today,
You are the man we shall not wed!

WICHITA FALLS RECIPE.

Recipe For Sweet Sandwich Filling.
(By Mrs. T. E. Dobson)

Wash any desired quantity of dates desired in tepid water, remove skins dry and stone. Remove scales and inner skin near stone if it is tough. Add an equal portion of chopped walnuts, moisten with soft butter or cream dressing and spread between thin slices of bread. Figs and pecans or raisins and almons may be combined in the same manner to make a very tempting sandwich.

MRS. FOSTER'S PUPILS GIVE RECITAL TUESDAY EVENING

On April 28th at 8:30 p. m., the senior members of Mrs. Foster's class gave a piano recital at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Von der Lippe, corner Thirteenth and Bluff. They were assisted by Mrs. E. L. Fulton whose excellent rendition of Fosti's "Good Bye" and two "Little Japenese Songs" by Woodforde-Fiden completely captivated the audience. The program was as follows: Consolution, Agnes Leicham; Love Song, Lucy Huggins; prelude Op. 28, No. 15, Amy Ellinger; song, Mrs. Fulton; Spring Song, Ila Cook; Song of Love, Amy Ellinger; Nocturne Op 37, No. 1, Ila Cook; Song, Mrs. Fulton. The high class program speaks for itself and the manner in which the performers acquitted themselves may be best expressed by the remark of a musician among the audience: "But these are not only students, they are some future artists." The remarkable advancement that was noticeable in the same pupils which took part in last year's recital will recommend Mrs. Foster as one of the leading piano teachers of our city.

REV. AND MRS. CANNEDY CELEBRATE CHINA WEDDING

Wednesday evening Rev T. E Cannedy and wife celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary with a large informal reception at their home, 805 Bluff. Unique cards for the affair had been issued bearing the name of Rev. Cannedy and his bride of twenty years ago, the date of the wedding, then the "at home" April 29, 1914. This being the china anniversary, the decorations were in keeping, a color scheme of gold and white being observed In each of the reception rooms and the hall the chandeliers were entwined with white and gild with the two dates figuring in this celebration, 1894-1914. In the large arch between the two rooms were the names tastily arranged and decorated, Cannedy-McEldeath. Wild primroses and the yellow and white daisies were much in evidence, as well as roses and foliage from the same yard where the bride's bouquet was obtained twenty years ago in Campbell, Texas. The idea of the china wedding was carried out in printed booklets, containing a floral wedding contest, with china illustrations, together with the dates and names of the host and hostess. The color scheme of gold and white was carried out further in the dainty cards, embossed in gold, bearing a cupid with bow and arrow and repeating the names and dates which were pinned on each guest in the dining room, for souvenirs of the occasion The guests were received at the door by Mr. and Mrs. G. Roach sister and brother-in-law of the hostess. Mesdames W. A Henson and J. D Peeler then ushered into the punch room, where they were served refreshing punch by Misses Sadie Sasser and Echo Stengle. The name of each guest was then registered in the dainty guest book, presided over by Miss Gene Stengle In the parlor the guests were received by Rev and Mrs. Cannedy. A floral wedding contest was then enjoyed, followed by appropriate talks along humorous lines by Judge P. A. Martin, Prof J B. Jones and Deacon L. H. Lawler Mrs. R. C. Smith gave a very interesting reading, "A Little Girl's Essay on Man" other readings being given by Mesdames Henson and Roach. Short talks were made by the following, telling why they did not get married Misses Era Stratton, Mamie Boone, Gene Stengle, Lucy Smoot, Sadie Sasser, Vera Giles and G. A Smoot, Oran Nicholson, Eugene Burchard, Fred Stengle, Homer King and Hudson Nicholson. Instrumental music and solos were rendered by Misses Laura Martin, Vera Giles, Kathryn Cannedy, Mesdames Morgan Cockrell and Roach. In the dining room delicious ice cream, angel food cake, pound cake and mints were served by Mesdames Henson, Burns Peeler, Nicholson, Roach and Mr Henson Rev. and Mrs. Cannedy were the recipients of a number of beautiful gifts from friends both in and out of the city among them being a handsome set of Hayiland china which was presented by the members of the Fourth Street and First Baptist Churches of this city. More than one hundred guests helped the host and hostess to celebrate this happy event in their lives and wished them many more anniversaries just as happy.

The Civic League will have a called meeting Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church. All members are urged to be present.

Raisins

How to Use Them

The problem of getting the best food for your family as well as the most economical food makes it absolutely necessary to study carefully the food question as a whole and in view of the fact that April 30th is Raisin Day all over the country and especially at my store, I want to tell you just a few things about raisins.

1st. One pound of raisins equals one and one-third pounds of meat in food value.

2nd. One pound of raisins equals six younds of apples in food value

3rd. One pound of raisins equals five younds of bananas in food value.

4th. One pound of raisins equals four and one-fourth pounds of potatoes in food value.

Raisins are the best known natural laxative. There are at least twenty-eight different ways in which you can use raisins.

Now, it seems to me in view of these remarkable facts about the great and little-known food value of this remarkable evaporated fruit that if I could tell you some of the most popular recipes for preparing raisins that you might appreciate them and give them a fair trial.

Here's one of the best ones.

RAISIN BREAD

Soak one yeast cake in one and one-half cups of potato water; mix enough flour to make a stiff batter; beat five minutes. Let stand over night. In the morning, scald two cups of sweet milk, into which pour one rounded tablespoon Cottolene, one tablespoon salt, three tablespoons sugar. When milk is lukewarm mix with the yeast; add enough flour to make a stiff batter; beat about ten minutes; let rise. When sufficiently raised, add two cups seeded or seedless raisins; mix; add more flour and kneed until dough is smooth; let rise. Make into loaves and bake one hour. When baked wet top of loaves with sugar and hot water to prevent the crust becoming hard.

It is the baking powder. To make muffins, cakes and pastry rich and moist, yet light and feathery, a modern double acting baking powder must be used—one that will give off leavening gas in the oven as well as in the mixing bowl.

KC BAKING POWDER

is really a blend of two baking powders, one of which starts to raise as soon as moisture is added. The other is inactive until heat is applied. This sustains the raise until your muffins, biscuits or cake is done.

K C Baking Powder costs less than the old fashioned quick acting kinds, yet you need use no more and it is superior to them in every way.

This is a dream country. At Fort Worth Rev J Frank Norris is in trouble charged with arson while at Dallas—only 1 mile distant he is advertised in the papers as conducting a great revival meeting. Just how he manages both attractions at the same time is a little difficult to figure out unless it is that he attends court at Fort Worth during the day and after adjournment takes the train for Dallas to fill his appointments at the revival meeting. No one however expects Rev Norris to be convicted. In fact it has always looked as if the testimony against him was purely of the manufactured kind and he was indicted to shield the real perpetrators of that piece of dirty work

The Wichita Falls country so far as crops are concerned is in finer condition now than it has been since the year 1911. That year more than one million five hundred thousand bushels of wheat and oats were produced in Wichita county alone. It was a great year and following the harvesting and marketing of the great crop there was plenty of money. Everybody had it and they spent it freely and recklessly. From the present outlook we have every reason to expect that our wheat crop of 1914 in this section of country will be by far the great and most abundant ever harvested

G R Decker of the Bowman community was in town today. Mr Decker is a farmer who farms and as a result he selects to make crops of one kind or other. This year however he is unusually optimistic about crop conditions and his predictions are average of twenty bushels per acre for wheat in his immediate section. Wheat is now in the boot and in less than a month the harvest will begin. The farmers have no fears of not making a bumper crop except a heavy fall of hail. Many farmers are insuring against hail and more would perhaps if the premiums exacted were somewhat lower. Insurance against hail is a good thing but when it costs $75 to get $1,000 worth of that kind of insurance many farmers balk and take their chances. Mr Becker is in the latter class. He came to town to take out insurance against hail but found that it was far more expensive than he thought it would be and will therefore take the chances

THE WOOLEN INDUSTRY

The woolen industry claimed a short time ago that the democratic administration had ruined its industry. In proof of which the Cleveland Worsted Mills Co have increased their stock from three to ten million and are putting up additional factories.—Quanah Tribune Chief

And too Brother Kelly we noted from a news item from San Angelo the wool center of Texas the other day that the sheep and goat men of that country were expecting the highest prices for wool they had for many years past. And it amusing now that the San Angelo people were fighting the reduction of the wool tariff a few months ago claiming destruction of the wool interests in Texas. The old democratic party is not half so bad as some would have one to believe.—Childress Index

Speaking about sheep and wool reminds us that the farmer has always been the high protection goat. Under a pretense of protective duty on his products his support was won to a system that placed a high duty—one that really did protect the other fellow in securing profit—on everything that the farmer bought. As long as the American farmer was willing to accept protection against competition that couldn't compete he wasn't in a very good position to kick about the protection through which the other fellow gouged him

THE 'COMPANY STORE IS A THIEF

When there is a disposition on the part of either party to settle their differences by submitting them for settlement to a competent board of arbitration it is almost clear evidence that the party who declines arbitration is in the wrong. In the Colorado mining trouble the governor of that state has called on the President of the United States to send Federal troops to protect property and stop fighting going on between the striking miners and mine guards. The mine guards are desperate men. They care little for the taking of life. The striking miners are desperate also. In a manner they have been driven desperate and no one can doubt but in their desperation they have committed many unlawful acts. As a result many lives have been lost and much property destroyed. All of this could have been avoided by submitting to arbitration. President Wilson viewed the matter in that light. The first thing he did after being urged to send troops into Colorado was to call on John D Rockefeller the elder who has large mining interests in Colorado to bring about a settlement of the differences existing between the striking miners and the mine owners. He refused to interfere referring the President to John D Jr who did the same thing. The mine owners claim to have granted all the demands of the striking miners except the recognition of their union. This they will not do. The miners however assert that while this is true to a certain extent it is not true in others. One of their demands was that employes should be allowed to trade where they pleased without danger of losing their jobs. All the mining companies in Colorado have what is known as company stores. In most of the mining towns the mining companies also manage to keep out all competition in the way of mercantile establishments. Some times this is accomplished by the mining company acquiring all property within the mining camps. Therefore a strictly mining town usually consists of a few hundred little three or four room houses all alike. The only way in which one can be distinguished from the others is by the numbers on the door. Then there is what is known as the company store that carries everything the miners have use for. There are no other stores and if so they are not located within convenient distance to the mining town. The result is the miners have but one place to trade and they pay the price asked and no grumbling is permitted. That the company stores make a handsome profit no one who has ever taken the trouble to investigate can doubt. As for instance vegetables that are shipped in from distant points are sold out to miners at profits that amount to robbery. Radishes that the company stores buy for a dozen bunches usually consisting of five to seven radishes to a bunch are retailed to the miners at 15c per bunch and everything else in proportion. No peddlers of vegetables are allowed to peddle on company grounds. The miners are therefore compelled to buy from the company store or do without. It is a system that should be abolished. It matters not how much wages the miners might draw if compelled to buy from the company stores they are robbed. This is a free country. The employer of labor should not be forced to pay unreasonable wages nor should the wage earner be robbed of his wages whatever they might be after he has earned them. The company store is a thief and should be abolished. It is responsible for more suffering than any other one thing. It will do no good for the mine owners to pretend that the miners can trade where they please unless they make it possible for other merchants to establish in towns other than their own to come in and compete with the company stores for the miners trade. In many states the company store method of robbery has been so regulated or completely destroyed as to make it impossible for employes to be charged enormous or unusual profits for what they are compelled to buy. It should be that way in Colorado but it is not. There is no law to compel any employer of labor to recognize union labor. There never will be. But there should be a law to protect the man who labors from being robbed of his earnings whether he be a union or a non union laborer

THE PRESTIGE OF THE UNITED STATES

War is brought about by causes but history justifies it by results. Not infrequently the causes are widely at variance with the results which comes about from the fact that the causes are usually no more than detailed excuses to countenance a general situation too intangible to be reduced to premises for conflict but too aggressive to be tolerated.

The direct cause of the American revolution was unjust and partial taxation but the independence of the United States was the result and the result was really what made the struggle worth while.

The direct cause of the present trouble with Mexico was a constructive insult to the nation's flag but the American people will feel and history will record that the loss of life and destruction of property is inexcusable if the firing of a 21 gun salute is the only result to be obtained.

Already the detailed cause is merging much into the general situation. Already we begin to see what must be accomplished in order that our action may not be execrated as unlikely and ill advised by future generations.

A formal acknowledgement of the respect due our national emblem will not now offer sufficient guarantee that this prestige has been permanently and unequivocally recognized.

Despite President Wilson's declaration to the contrary the American people the various elements in Mexico and the world in general all view the seizure of Vera Cruz as an act of war.

Despite all this smooth talk about disassociating Huerta from the Mexican nation the very fact that we have shot down its soldiers and civilians indiscriminately will make differentiation between the two very difficult in the minds of those who regard acts as more significant than words.

Despite our refusal to recognize Victoriano Huerta as representing a government the fact that we have accepted the A B C offer of mediation cannot fail to place him on a parity with recognized authority in the eyes of disinterested nations.

We are at war and the result of that war can be our only justification. The Mexican people misunderstand our motives. The Huertistas are in some with bitterness. The constitutionalists are trying to curry favor. Both assume that our attitude is partisan.

The bitterness which has been engendered by such misconceptions and their incident disappointments which are bound to follow, could not be wiped away in a generation did not the United States assume such a stern unbending position of exact impartiality on the highest moral grounds that it could not be misapprehended.

This nation's prestige in Mexico, Latin America and the world at large can only be upheld by indisputable proof that we have engaged in this war not to destroy one faction in Mexico, but to lift up the whole nation.

To this end the elimination of Huerta would be a mere incident while the exaltation of the constitutionalists would prove disastrous.

Before the trouble is over we must make the Mexican people see that it is for a constitutional government that we are contending, and if our present effort is not to turn out a fizzle and fiasco both must be insulted to them before we can recede or consider the affair closed.—Houston Chronicle

The people of Wichita Falls have already heard Candidate Ferguson, who wants to be our next governor. They gave him a warm greeting extended the glad hand and made him feel like he was going to make a clean sweep in the way of vote getting in this particular neck of the woods. But they also want to hear Col Call and will not be satisfied unless he comes. Wichita Falls is too big to be slighted even by a gubernatorial candidate. Her people want to hear and see the man who is to be the next governor of Texas and as most of them are too busy to go down to Austin after the election, their only chance is to see the governors as they make their appearance here. Col Ball should come to Wichita

A treat for the musical public is in store when the musicians club presents King Renes Daughter at the Wichita Theatre next week Particularly beautiful are the choruses by the Vintagers while the solos of Iolanthe the blind daughter of the king are appealing in their beauty The Angelus chorus with its mellow twilight bill is a strong contrast to the song of rapture preceding it when Iolanthe receives her sight through the touch of a gay troubadour Months of anthing effort on the part of the musicians club will make this the musical event of the season 1 1tc

Bride's Insubordination Played Important Part In U. S. History

By Associated Press

St Louis April 28—Seventy-one years have elapsed since an eighteen year old bride in this city played a tremendous part in the history of the United States by intercepting and withholding important government orders The history of at least three states on the Pacific Coast hinges more or less directly upon this act of insurbordination pronounced at the time far and wide as high handed but later justified by the exigences of the times The bride was Mrs Jessie Benton Fremont wife of John C Fremont the explorer and statesman and daughter of Thomas H Benton for many years a senator from Missouri

Early in 1842 Freemont received from the United States government a commission to undertake the second of his noted expeditions of explorations to the northwest, then a vast uninhabited region the ultimate destiny of which hung in the balance In obedience to it he came to St Louis from Washington and immediately set about outfitting his expedition with his young wife acting as his secretary

It is a matter of history that during the first third of the last century there was a powerful sentiment both in and out of congress against extending the dominion of the United States to the Pacific Coast Such senators as Webster and Calhoun were opposed to it and for the most part were able to influence Congress to their beliefs On the other hand Senator Benton following his first election in 1821 became a staunch advocate of western expansion and was able to command a large following through whose efforts the various expeditions of exploration were authorized

In outfitting his expedition Freemont took the liberty of adding a 12 pound brass howitzer secured from the government arsenal at St. Louis upon the representation that he needed it as a defense against possible hostile Indians

News of this acquisition it appears was carried hastily to Washington where the announcement created something of a sensation in governmental circles The element not especially friendly to the expedition declared that the taking of cannon into foreign or neutral territory constituted an act of hostility which might involve the government in grave eventualities This view appears to have been shared by the head of the Topographic Bureau under whose direction the explorations were being made for he straightway dispatched sealed orders to Freemont at St Louis directing him to halt the expedition and report forthwith at Washington for the purpose of giving an explanation of his action

Freemont had left St Louis for the west in April shortly before the arrival of these orders Mrs Freemont as his secretary being instructed to open his mail and forward by courier such documents as appeared important He was still within easy recall having proceeded but a short distance into what now constitutes Kansas upon the day of the arrival of the important post

The young Mrs Freemont, who was thoroughly imbued with the ardor of her husband and father for western expansion thought she discerned in the peremptory orders a subterfuge to defeat the purpose of the expedition For her husband to proceed to Washington she well knew would require weeks and make impossible any journey to the Northwest during that season Senator Benton was absent, it was before the days of telegraph, she had no one with whom to counsel Thus beset the young wife resolved to suppress the orders

Summoning one of the fast couriers at her command Mrs Freemont dispatched a message of love to her husband urging him at all hazards to hasten his departure from the fartherest fringe of civilization and to pass beyond the Rocky Mountains as quickly as possible There were hints of a reason in the massage, but the reason was not given

Thus Colonel Freemont proceeded upon a journey of months all unconscious that his presence in Washington was daily expected

There was another sensation at Washington when the expedient practiced by the young bride became known It was stated that Freemont would be arrested and court matialed as soon as the government could lay hands upon him and that his wife also might suffer prosecution Nothing came of these threats however and when the explorer finally did reach Washington months later he found praise and promotion instead of prosecution while his secretary was regarded as something of a heroine because of her part in the success of the expedition

The Freemont party dragged that wheel mounted cannon across the trackless mountains and plains far to the Northwest almost to the present site of Portland Oregon Returning it was conveyed down the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada Mountains to about the point where the Central Pacific Railway now surmounts that range There in attempting to cross into California the expedition was caught by the snows of winter and the piece had to be abandoned At Lake Tahoe nearby, it rests today—silent memento of a girls defiance of the government of the United States

MAKING PREPARATIONS FOR JUNE RACE MEET

Secretary Jeffries Opens Headquarters Here and First Shipment of Horses Arrives

Preparations for the June race meet and the opening of the Texas Oklahoma Short Ship Circuit have started here with the arrival from Childress of T J Jeffries who will act as secretary of the meet The first shipment of five horses has also arrived and is now in quarters at the lake in training for the season

Mr Jeffries has been employed by the Chamber of Commerce to make arrangements for the meet here and will remain until the races are held in June Within a few days it is expected that other strings of horses will begin arriving as this city is to be the training point for all the horses that will take part in the circuit Horsemen from many parts of the Southwest are getting ready to ship here and within a week or two Lake Wichita will be quite a racing center

Every Tuesday and Friday the horses will work out on the track at the lake

Mr Jeffries brought his string of five horses with him reaching here today They were driven out to the lake this morning His string includes Mary Malone the pacer that won first money nine times last season Baroness May a green pacer Alice C a green pacer Horace Gano, a trotting colt and Clara A a pacer

MAER TO RETURN HERE FITZPATRICK PROMOTED

Two important changes on the Fort Worth & Denver will take place June 1 according to news received here R G Fitzpatrick for the past four years superintendent of the Wichita Valley will go to Childress as superintendent of the south end division O F Maer formerly superintendent of the Wichita Valley and for four years past superintendent of the Childress division comes to Wichita Falls as superintendent of the Valley Mr Maer desired to return to Wichita Falls and was transferred here at his request

The change is a promotion for Mr Fitzpatrick who will move his headquarters to Childress where he was formerly trainmaster for the Denver Mr Maer is by no means a stranger to Wichita Falls and his friends here are legion these rejoice that he is once more to be numbered among Wichita Falls citizens

It was rumored several weeks ago that this change would be made but definite information was not forthcoming until recently It is expected that official announcement will be made within the next few weeks

Government Gives Advice To The Town Poultry Keeper

Washington, April 28.—Of the various kinds of live stock, poultry is most widely adapted to suburban conditions for several reasons. It can be handled successfully on a very small amount of land. The waste products from the kitchen and the table may be used to advantage as feed. The care of the chickens is pleasant work, is comparatively simple, and may be done by any member of the family. Eggs and dressed poultry are always in demand and may be sold to advantage in any quantity, or used at home, thus furnishing a strictly fresh product which is hard to secure under general market conditions; and in addition for adults, employment and good discipline for the children, and be a source of income to the housewife, or saving in the food account for the family, say poultry specialists of the Department of Agriculture.

The following breed are among the most popular in this country: Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds, Orpington and Single-Comb. White Leghorns. The Leghorns belong to the egg-laying class of fowls, lay a white egg and are especially adapted to large, commercial egg farms, or to sections where a white egg brings a premium over brown eggs. The other breeds belong to the general-purpose class, and may lay brown eggs. They are better adapted to the average person, or the farmer who keeps only a small number of fowls, as they are good layers and also make good table poultry. Another advantage of the general purpose breeds is that they will hatch eggs and brood their chickens, while the Leghorns, and other breeds of the egg-laying class are non-setters.

A great variety of methods of feeding and caring for poultry are used successfully. Hatching and brooding, or rearing chickens under hens, is the best method to use where a small number of chicken are raised, and especially is the care is apt to be irregular. Incubators and brooders may be used also, but they increase the cost of the equipment considerably. Chickens can be reared under hens successfully by keeping the hens confined in the brood coop, while allowing the chickens to roam at will.

When many fowls are kept in a small space, the ground becomes so foul that in time it becomes difficult to rear chickens with good success. In order to avoid this condition, it is advisable to divide the lot and sow part of it with some of the quick-growing grains such as oats, wheat or rye. By this method the yards may be rotated every thre or four weeks during the growing season, turning the hens onto the growing grain when it is a few inches high. A good combination of grains is oats and wheat in equal parts, sowing 6 or 7 bushels to the acre (43,560 equare feet), and using wheat alone for the last seeding in the fall.

The prime esentials in poultry houses are fresh air, dryness, sunlight and space enough to keep the birds comfortable. Allow abo[illegible] of floor space per bird for general purpose breeds. A good egg-laying ration may be made on a dry mash of equal parts of corn meal, bran, middlings and beef scrap, which is kept before the birds in a hopper all of the time, and a scratch ration of equal parts of corn, wheat and oats fed in a litter 4 to 5 inches deep twice daily. Regulate this feed so that the birds eat about one-half mash and one-half scratch grain, which will mean feeding about one quart of mixed grains daily to 12 Plymouth Rock hens or to 14 Leghorns. In order to utilize the waste table products to the best advantage a moist mash may be used in place of the dry mash, feeding once daily. If it contains much meat, table scrap may be substituted for the beef scrap; if not, merely add it to the mash above given.

The selection of stock is a matter of considerable importance as a great deal of one's success or failure with poultry depends upon the individual specimens used to breed from. Care should be taken to select the early maturing, fast growing pullets. Hens will not, as a rule, lay until they are well matured; consequently it can be readily seen that the slow-growing breeds will not begin to lay as soon as the former. A good index to a hen's laying ability to pay a profit over the cost of feed and labor is her ability to be continually on the move. It is advisable to keep but one breed of pure-bred fowls, as the product from a flock of the same variety is more uniform than that from a flock of mixed breeds or mongrel stock.

It takes a healthy, well-fed flock to produce eggs. Fowls must not be allowed to become too fat, as but few eggs will be laid by hens in such condition. To prevent their getting overfat, it is best to make them work for most of their feed by scratching in the litter, of which there should be about 4 inches on the floor. This litter can be of stray, leaves, or chaff, and should always be kept dry.

A good feed for egg production is one composed of corn, wheat and oats, equal parts by measure. It is advisable to use home-grown grains whenever possible. In sections where corn and oats do not thrive, other grains can be used to good advantage; for example, a mixture of equal parts by measure of kaffir corn, oats, and barley will produce good results. Scatter a small handful of this mixture for every three hens in the litter morning and noon, and give them all they will eat of it in a V-shapped trough at night. In the wintertime some green feed should be fed at noon; cabbage or mangel-wurzels, either chopped or whole, are good. Every few days look in the litter carefully and see if the fowls are eating all the grain being given them; if not, reduce the quantity. Fowls that have to work for what they get seldom become overfat. Grit and oyster shells in a hopper should always be kept for them. The grit is used to grind their feed and the oyster shell furnishes the lime for the eggshells. Be sure to keep water before them at all times. Birds that are laying drink much more water than those that are not laying. The water should be kept out of the direct rays of the sun.

FOREST FIRE FIGHTING METHODS ON MOVIES

Chicago, April 30.—Moving pictures of forest fires in the northwest woods and the methods employed in fighting them, photographs and tree models from several cities of the United States, were on exhibit at the Coliseum today when the National Wood Show, designed to show the development in municipal forestry in this country opened in charge of J. H. Prest, city forester of Chicago.

Prest's collection included street scenes in Washington, where trees are well cared for and many similar views taken in Western cities, particularly the coast on the Pacific coast.

The same collection will be exhibited in the Grand Central Palace, New York City beginning May 21.

Mrs. Tucker's BRAND Shortening

IT'S hard to get good results making biscuits with lard; they're heavy, tough and soggy. The price of butter is prohibitive, and butter quality also varies like the weather.

The one absolutely sure way to get biscuits that are light, creamy and palatable is to use Mrs. Tucker's Shortening.

This is an entirely new cooking fat. Pure, wholesome and economical. Isn't heavy and greasy like lard; costs far less than butter; will give you cooking results equal to the finest butter ever made—positively never varies in quality and freshness. There is no shortening equal to this.

For Light, Palatable Biscuits and Cakes

for frying meats, fish, vegetables, etc., Mrs. Tucker's Shortening is the proven, best and cheapest. 3-lb. to 50-lb. cans.

Contrasting Views On Causes Of Oil Price Reduction

LONG WRITES ON INDEPENDENT DEVELOPMENT LEAGUE

W C Long writing of the Independent Development League in Oklahoma in the Oklahoma Democrat, says:

It is to be regretted, yet it is the truth, that the Standard Oil Company never has the true facts placed before it except when papers other than its own subsidized press are read. The men who make the reports think that to earn their niggardly salary that they must clothe all truth in the romantic coloring of falsehoods, thereby weaving a fabric of mis-statements and kid themselves into a knowledge that they have done something for their idol Pat Boyle knows that sometimes even the good natured Associated Press will administer a reprimand, when he buys the report and colors it to suit Broadway, as the report of the board of directors of that organization will show in 1913 or 1912. The meeting that organized the Independent Development League at Oklahoma City on April 23 was a representative meeting. The spirit manifested there was one of righteous indignation brought about by a long-suffering humanity, from the heel of the oppressor. That they were all desperately in earnest was indicated by the number present, the Chamber of Commerce room being well filled at the morning and afternoon meetings. It being an independent meeting of independent people, not alone of all producers, but of all the people of the State of Oklahoma, for it concerned the whole people, as the gold that poured into the coffers of this state last year from the oil and gas industry amounted to more than $120,000,000. Does it not make a difference to the laymen as well as the oil men whether that will be this year half as much or twice as much? Does not the dollar measure all things? If a thousand dollars comes into a community the enterprising citizens will get their share, and no matter from what commodity that thousand dollars comes. Hence when you cut into the receipts of every business in the community. That was the reason that this meeting was called. There is no other industry in the whole world where the buyer says, what you have is worth one dollar, and you have no where else to market your product This in itself would not be so bad if the purchaser was a creator. If he made the markets, if by his genius he had evolved mechanism that made the goods into a merchantable product. But he is neither of these. He even in his greed curtails the market, as he did recently when he took Oklahoma oil off the fuel market—the oil was too precious to be used in that way. He would do the same thing if every man, woman and child would get catarrh and create a demand for vaseline to lubricate the nostrils. He would do the same thing if the world would turn Catholic on the wax that goes into the candles. He might do the same thing if the women would change their attire from dresses to pantaloons and the demand for an increase of pressing shops be created (on the gasoline product). But wh go on? Whenever the demand gets dangerous and the stocks are declining he is the autocrat that dictates to the man what he shall do. Just let this soak in and see if there is not justice in the calling of meetings and appealing to our government for help —it is not his government, although he has owned it so long that I do not blame him for still claiming it on statute of limitation or squatter's right Does any fair-minded man see anything wrong in asking aid from the United States government, as I said before, our government? When the panic of 1907 was at its worst who did the bankers appeal to for help; To their government, and they were not denied that help When the flag was insulted in Mexico the demand was made by the patriotic men for satisfaction It will cost thousands of precious lives (don't forget that they will be some mothers' sons) and millions of dollars to wipe out that insult. Yet the same government when asked for assistance to help in the great development of a great commodity by men of character, a hired press agent belittles their effort. It is no wonder that socialism is rife, it is no wonder that the producers are bitter. But that meeting at Oklahoma City shows that they were desperately in earnest.

The committees have been published and the actions of the body, so I will not take the space to go into that But I defy any man to criticise the make-up of officers or the directors, or the delegates who are to go to Washington to appeal not for what is right, but to demand what is not only right but just.

It was one of the most harmonious of meetings. The only thing that marred the happiness of the meeting was a pifficated representative of Jim O'Neil and the Tulsa World. That man had to be sat upon by the president, Mr French. It was just another illustration of "out of the forked tongued mouth of the rattler you could not expect the song bird's note."

Mr. Wrightsman's speech was a classic. Someone has said that eloquence is nothing more than being full of your subject Those of us who listened to Mr. Wrightsman were not only pleased with his eloquence but we were edified and happy in the fact that the independents had such a man who by the force of his logic could make an appeal worthy of a worthy cause?

As a student of the oil business for thirty years I am prone to think that great good will come from this concrete, live organization

ANOTHER SIDE OF THE OIL PRICE QUESTION

Oil and Gas Journal.

Chickens will come home to roost. And some of the oil producers of Oklahoma are finding this out to their sorrow. As usual, it is the small producer who realizes bitterly and to his financial detriment that he has been worked and that legislative statutes which were thought remedial and to his benefit are really only for the benefit of the big producer who can always take care of himself.

Five years ago the agitating producers, the class which is never satisfied with anything and which is always trying through statutory enactment to change natural and immutable laws, had the Oklahoma legislature pass a law which required that the oil pipe lines should be common purchasers or common carriers. The law provided that the purchasers should buy an equal amount from every producer in the field and severe penalties were imposed for violation of any of the provisions. The statute is known as the Yeager-Strain bill and its passage was heralded as another victory for the downtrodden and oppressed producer and another long step in the direction of making the wicked pipe-line companies be good. It was a bloodless victory, because the pipe-line companies interposed no objection to the passage of the law.

And every transportation company in the state at once put the law in force, and it has been in force ever since As long as the pipe-line capacity could take care of and handle all the production in the state there has been no occasion for complaint as to the operation of the statute. But recently there has arisen one of those situations which arise in every oil field in the country, which demonstrates anew the folly of trying to abridge natural laws by act of the legislature. The Cushing district produces more oil every day than the transportation companies can possibly *take care of. The production has in*creased rapidly every week and is still increasing rapidly. The transportation companies have repeatedly warned the producers to shut down drilling, and these warnings proving futile, reductions in price have necessarily followed. But none of the appeals have been heeded and the producers have gone steadily ahead drilling inside locations and adding daily to the flood of oil. So great has been the pressure of the production on the facilities of the transportation companies that the Prairie Oil & Gas Company on Saturday notified the producers that it could only take 75 per cent of the production.

And right here is where the pinch comes In order to protect itself in the Cushing district and observe the provisions of the statute regulating the operation of pipe lines, it was necessary to curtail the runs from every leave in the entire state of Oklahoma In the shallow pool, for instance, where the daily production is [illegible] of the pipe line capacity the runs must be curtailed in the same proportion that they are shortened at Cushing, or the pipe-line companies will be mulcted in the sum of $5,000 a day penalties to the state. There is no discretion lodged in the pipe-line companies at all. They are bound by a hard and fast statute which presumes conditions to be similar all over the state.

The irony of the situation is that the small producers in the various producing districts where pipe lines can handle the entire production are the first and the most defenseless victims of the very law which they labored so hard to have passed. The big producer can take care of himself. That is the history of the oil game and the big producers in this state are not losing very much sleep. But the man with the 3 or 5-barrel well, the man who is lying awake nights to take care of the paper in the bank, is suffering. And he must contiue to suffer as long as the law remains on the statute books. Nor can he obtain any relief until the meeting of the legislature next January, if then. The small producer must grin and bear it and that is all there is to it.

There has been a change of sentiment, rapidly generated, as the result of the operation of the new order. The small producer now realizes that some discretion must be lodged in the man*agement of the transportation* companies, that conditions differ as the production differs and that no hard and fast rules can be enforced by the conduct of the business. Naturally, some of the people who are being hurt through the operation of the new rule are complaining and there is criticism of the transportation agencies, but this is indulged in by only a small coterie of producers. The great body of the men in the business realize that they are the victims of their own folly, of their own mistaken ideas of the way to regulate things; in fact, they are realizing through the medium of an appeal to their pocketbooks that legislative regulation or attempted regulation is a dangerous experiment and frequently has a sort of back action which is disastrous.—Oil and Gas journal.

CLEVELAND CHANGES FROM CENTRAL TO EASTERN TIME

Cleveland, April 30—Amid blasts of factory whistles and city-wide celebration, Cleveland at midnight tonight will turn her watches and clocks forward one hour, signalizing a change from Central to Eastern time A score of other cities in Northern Ohio also will make the change.

Instead of going to work at seven o'clock tomorrow morning thousands of workers will really answer factory whistles at 6 a m (central time) and will cease at 4 p. m. The primary purpose of the change, brought about by Cleveland city officials, is to give workingmen an additional hour of daylight.

Some confusion is expected in the announcement of railroads that, temporarily at least, schedules will continue to operate on central time. Thus a traveler may arise at seven, prepare his toilet, eat breakfast and take the seven o'clock train with plenty of time to spare Others, unfamiliar with the change may arrive an hour early at the railroad station and be forced to wait A few adjacent cities will not adopt the change with Cleveland. Railroad trains destined to these cities will in this case make the run in less than nothing—so to speak —from a standpoint of Eastern time prevailing in the city of departure.

Mayor Newton D. Baker issued a proclamation several days ago, calling on every citizen to observe the formal change by setting forward the hands of his watch and clock or clocks and take part, if possible, in the general celebration.
